In Tennessee, the case is bravely altered. There the Republicans, without distinction of solor, are enfranchised, while the Rebels are not. So, being under, those Rebels conspire and organize in secret their "Kak-lax K'ans," for the persecution and killing of Unionists, aspecially blacks. I am a plain man who hates nonsense. My friend Bumpus tells me that I must dispose of a few pounds of the adipose tissue which I pack under my waistoost, lace my stays a little tighter, and call upon Mr. Banting.

"Biobb," says my friend Bumpus, "You're too fat. You est too much you take too little exercise. I see by your gasping at this moment that you'll die of fatty heart, if you don't mind yourself.

Fat, don't you know, if you get too much of it, collects about the cockles of the heart, and hinders them from opening their shells—smothers them, in fact. Blobb! you are a mass of cockles: and one of these days you will besmothered."

"Bumpus." I said, "you are unfeeling."

"It's what you'll wish you were. But come, old fellow, I'll go be you a chance of twenty years more of life. You won't leave off feeding on potatoes, you will heat; eat 'ean, and work 'em into muscle. If you want to save your cockies, fall to at your muscles." I believed, upon my honor, that he meant this for a joke. "A lean new years to you," says he, "and more lean years than Pharaoh had. Here, Blobb, my boy, I'd be sorry to lose a good neighbor as soon as you seem to be going, and so I shall take the liberty of giving you a Christmas-box."
